

The Chicken as a Pet

To one fond of birds, the pleasures of chicken raising are most seductive. The chicken in its youth is perhaps a trifle ethereal in its lines of beauty, but as it grows into a buxom hen it takes to itself a comeliness which we admire—when cooked.

To become a chicken farmer you need a back yard, an old barrel, a roll of wire netting. We have the netting as well as about everything else in the line of Poultry Sundries.

WILL WRITE UP HONOLULU

E. W. Howe, editor and proprietor of the Atchison (Kansas) Globe, arrived on the Siberia this morning accompanied by his daughter, Mateel. The two are making a tour of the world. They will stop over only this evening. Mr. Howe is being shown around the island today by John Emmelut and Miss Emmelut, his sister, who formerly lived at Atchison. Mr. Howe is writing a series of "vacation notes" for his paper and Honolulu and Oahu will be given a lengthy mention. Mr. Howe started the Atchison Globe 29 years ago and has been with the paper as its owner and proprietor ever since. This is the longest vacation he has ever had in his life. The Atchison Globe is one of the most widely quoted papers in the United States. Howe is the originator of the "Globe Sights," which are copied.

HONOLULU TO BE IN COMIC OPERA.

next fall probably in December. The piece is to be a two act musical comedy. From here the second act of the play will take the audience to Japan, where Mr. Pixley is now en route for the purpose of inspiration and thought. He will arrive in New York next May.
Mr. Pixley called upon Prof. H. Berger, leader of the Hawaiian band, this morning and discussed with him much about native music and its arrangement. The author's idea is to have at least one Hawaiian song in the play sung in the native language.
Frank E. Pixley is a young looking man for the amount of work he has done in the origin of comic operas. He is an excellent dresser, a good talker, fairly good looking and of a pleasant disposition. He is the author of the words in King Dodo, the Prince of Pilsen, and many other musical comedies, all of which have had great runs all over the world and are admired by the lovers of comic opera.

"I think I've got a remedy for this corpulence," said the fat Mr. Green, as he met an acquaintance the other day.
"So? Been sending for something?"
"Yes."
"I'll wager you got bunked."
"I don't think so. The advice sounds very reasonable. It's to discharge the hired girl and let my wife do the cooking for two or three weeks."—Chicago Daily News.
